La Batalla de Gettysburg (1 al 3 de julio de 1863) se desarrolló alrededor del pueblo de Gettysburg, Pensilvania como parte de la campaña de Gettysburg durante la Guerra Civil. Ha sido la batalla que tuvo más bajas en los Estados Unidos y es frecuentemente considerada, en combinación con el sitio de Vicksburg como el punto de inflexión de la Guerra de Secesión o Civil War estadounidense (1861-1865), marcando el inicio de la ofensiva de la Unión.

Fue una gran victoria para el ejército federal (ejército de la Unión) y un hecho desastroso para la Confederación. El ejército de la Unión estaba comandado por el mayor general George G. Meade y los confederados por el destacado estratega, general Robert E. Lee.
